Court of Appeals Upholds State Board of Equalization Action Increasing Assessment.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 28.—The Court of Appeals to-day, in an opinion by Judge O'Rear, upholds the constitutionality of the act creating the State Board of Equalization, and directs that the injunction granted by Judge Miller, of Louisville, be dissolved in the case of Ray, etc., against Armstrong.

After discussing all phases of the controversy the opinion concludes as follows:

"We conclude the statute is not contrary to the Constitution of Kentucky in that it destroys uniformity of taxation or that it gives the State Board of Equalization and Assessment arbitrary power to fix values that it does not deprive taxpayers of their property without due process of law; that it does not deny to any citizen all the privileges accorded other citizens, and that the board was properly constituted and organized and adopted the resolution complained of (increasing the assessed values) by sufficient and lawful vote. The judgment is reversed the injunction dissolved with directions to dismiss the petitions."

The whole court concurred in the opinion.

On August 2 last Sheriff Emmer went before the Fiscal Court and laid the proposition of tax collecting before that body. He stated that he was making out tax bills according to the injunction granted by Judge Miller, leaving off the 12 per cent. increase. He said should the Court of Appeals reverse Judge Miller he would be put to a great deal of expense in preparing new tax bills and collecting the increase. As Judge Muir Weisinger had taken a leading part in the resisting of the 12 per cent. increase the Fiscal Court deemed it wise to back him up. A resolution was adopted to the effect that Sheriff Emmer should be reimbursed by the Fiscal Court for any additional expense incurred by a reversal of the case and the increase had to be collected. This resolution was adopted on August 2 last.

The point has been raised as to whether the six per cent. penalty to be added to the State and county taxes not paid by December 1, will go on the 12 per cent. increase in taxes imposed by the State Board of Equalization and now upheld by the highest court. While Sheriff Emmer refrained from collecting the increase on the authority of the Fiscal Court until matter was finally adjudicated by the Court of Appeals, it is stated by some that this authority could only apply to the collection of the county revenue and not to the State taxes, for the collection of which the Sheriff executes a separate bond.

Bauer-Trant Marriage a Grand Affair—A. B. C. Writes Entertainingly of The Doings of The Saints.

St. Matthews, Nov. 28.—There is so much mystery in the air, now that everybody is making preparations for Christmas, that it is impossible to obtain any real news from saints or sinners.

The Bauer-Trant marriage was a grand affair indeed—celebrated with the impressive Catholic high mass, many bridesmaids, flower girls, etc., in great style. Everybody went to the church, even our postman, actually holding back "Uncle Sam's" bundles, etc., two hours until the folks were frantic for their papers, but when we found out the cause of delay it was all right.

Miss Julia Dusey has gone to school to the Academy of the Sacred Heart near Louisville. We miss her merry ways, but know she will come back more learned, more accomplished and more bewitching.

Reporters or registrars have been appointed in each Magisterial district—regular "watch dogs" with a business so prying of nature it will be impossible to escape. Alliteration will go on record in some way—by birth, marriage, death or something. No more secrets! The decree has gone forth from the Grand Master State Register of Vital Statistics that A. B. C. shall be one of the inquirers, so look out!

Mr. Lawrence Mahoney, who has been such a pleasant, efficient blacksmith at Fry's Hill, will remove his shop and self to O'Bannon, Dec. 1st. Though he has been with us only a short while we will miss his smiling face and genial ways.

We are so glad to welcome Mr. Henry Stutenberger's family to their Springfield home. We cannot find suitable words to express it. As actions speak louder than words, we will show by every means our appreciation of this addition to our neighborhood.

Mr. Harry Hahn will move this week to their beautiful new house in Springfield. We feel that our little burg is, indeed, on a boom.

Thanksgiving day was celebrated by relatives and friends in the good old Kentucky style—hospitality and an abundance of good things to eat.

Killed By Dynamite.

Post: While attempting to drill out a hole containing a charge of dynamite early Friday morning, Alex.
Jenkins, 45 years old, a laborer employed at the stone quarry of the Louisville & Eastern railroad at Acton station, fourteen miles east of Louisville, was instantly killed. He was hurled fifty feet in the air by the explosion, and fellow workmen found his remains a short distance away, horribly mangled.

The blast has been loaded several days before, but had failed to explode.
Jenkins decided that he could remove the dynamite without accident, and thus save drilling another hole.
It is said that he was warned of the danger by L. R. Williams, his foreman, but paid no heed. Jenkins had been working with dynamite for several years.

Dr. S. D. Wetherby and Dr. L.
D. Mason, of Middletown, were summoned to the scene after the accident, but their services were not needed. Dr. Ellis Duncan, the Coroner, viewed the body. The dead man was unmarried and was the son of the late William Jenkins, a well known farmer. He is survived by three brothers, James, John and George Jenkins, who live near Lyndon, and three sisters, Mrs. Skille Fontaine, of Lyndon, and Mrs. Mary Check and Mrs. Eliza Day, of Louisville.

The remains were taken on a Louisville & Eastern interurban car to the undertaking establishment of Albert Neunth, Louisville, and later were removed to the home of one of his sisters, Mrs. Check, at 164 Charlton street. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock Saturday morning at the interment being in Eastern cemetery.

THE CHEERFUL WAX CANDLE.

By ALICE LE BARON.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

ONCE upon a time two little candles lay side by side in a big box. Both were pure white.

Said one: "I wonder what will become of us. Do you think we could be meant for a Christmas tree?"

For you must know that to be put on a Christmas tree is the best possible thing that can happen to a candle.

"Of course not," said the other, who was cross. "If we are meant for a Christmas tree it will be for some shabby little children—see if it hurt."

"If we are," said the first, "I'll shine my very brightest, for the eyes of even poor children with only few pleasures in prospect are enough to rival little candles on Christmas eve."

"If we are," grumbled the second, "I am not sure that I will allow myself to be lighted at all."

Christmas eve drew nearer and near.
Sure enough, the two little candles, with many others of blue and pink and yellow and red, were bought for a Christmas tree.

On the day before Christmas, while it still was daylight, some young girls came to arrange the presents and make the tree ready for the evening.

"Oh, what a lot of pretty little candles!" said one of them. "They are such lovely colors—all except those two white ones. We will put them out of sight, because the red and pink ones are prettier."

"Didn't I tell you what would happen?" said the cross little candle in a whisper.

"Yes, but wait," replied the other.
"Just shine your brightest all the time."

"I won't," snapped the cross one.
When evening came, ranged all round the tree were happy boys and

"TUT! TUT! THE VERY TIPTOP!"

girls. Soon every branch on the great tree blossomed with little lights. Some of the flames were faint, but many were bright. When the little white candles were lighted the cross one just sputtered a puff and then went out. The other shone so brightly that a gleam of light shone near said.

"Oh, what a big little candle! But it is almost out of sight among the green branches. We ought to put it where it can be seen better."

"Put it on the very tip-top," said a little lady.

And that is where they put it—on the very tip-top of the tree, where it could be seen in answer to the smiling faces around it.

The Barber's Joke.

Christmas morning and the barber very busy.

"I'd rather shave ten Germans than one American."

The old-time brewer in the chair smiled broadly through the latter.

"Good," he chuckled. "Dot vos right! But vos."

The barber took a firm hold upon his victim's nose as he replied:

"Ten Germans pay me a dollar and a half—one American only 15 cents."

And you could have heard the thermometer drop.

Popcorn!

"If Santa Claus has corns the same as grandpa," said a wee girl the other day, "I think he'd be 'fraild to come down the chimney over a hot fire for four his corns would pop."

Santa Claus' Revenge.

Delayed come advice tonight.
That, "without proper cause,"
Two foolish boys went on a strike Against old Santa Claus.

They sent him written word that he Must take two tips a year.
The first an early one to see What children wanted here.

They said his work of late was bad.
They called him a miser and a miser.
They said it made them very sad—
Those presents gone to waste.

They asked him why he thought a boy
Would want a Teddy bear.
They said he could employ Much better judgment there.

They told him frankly what they thought.
They told him that they thought he ought To sell out and resign.
They told him that if paper then
To tell him what to do.

They said that when the what, the when,
They carefully went through—
And then they told him what to bring
For each boy in their town.
And for themselves—"Oh, everything!"
Was just the thing they put down.

They thought the saint was far too old
To understand their scheme.
And each one bought a bag, to hold Their presents, it would seem.
But when they woke on Xmas morn
With "What did Santa bring?"
Why, just as are you are born,
He hadn't left a thing!

Tolstol, the great Russian author, who died in an attempt to abandon his was an impossible genius. He was opposed to the imaginings of a dream and all kinds of christianity, and was apparently utterly devoid of affection for his own flesh and blood. Some of his literary works were unfit for publication, and more of them were clearly the imaginings of a diseased mind. While he fought evil, he was equally opposed to the good, and was a destructionist who will be forgotten as the world moves on.—Glasgow Times.

OWING to our failure to get all copy in early our big industrial and Christmas number will not be published until December 15. It will contain about fifty pages of historical matter and writings of our county villages, together with pictures of some of our country stores and business men and announcements of Louisville firms. The edition will be the biggest thing ever gotten out by a country paper, and the first one of the kind ever issued in this county. Every paid-up subscriber to The Jeffersonian will get one free. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

WHEN a physician or dentist goes into a new community to locate and practice his profession, he can not mail out circulars to the citizens, or insert a card in the local newspaper, announcing the fact that he is there, and telling his business like any other business or professional man—that is, if he is a member of his association—for that is advertising, and advertising is very much against the professional ethics. There are a large number of dentists and physicians who believe in advertising, and do it. They should get together and form an organization among themselves. It wouldn't be long before a large number of the members now in the present associations would drop out and join the one that would give them liberty to do as they please when it comes to advertising or making announcements with printers' ink.

OUR attention was called this week to the fact that Kentucky farmers were far behind those of some of the other states. We boast of pretty women, fine horses and cattle, "good" whiskey, "fighting" qualities, etc., and these things are all right—except the two last mentioned. But in our pride of these things we forget that Indiana and other states are raising more corn and wheat and other products per acre than Kentucky. Why? Is our soil not as fertile? Yes. Does't God send us the sunshine and the rain upon our crops like he does on those in other states? Yes. Then what is the matter with Kentucky? Simply lack of education. We need to get a hustle on ourselves. We should first educate our children, then educate the farmers and stock raisers along progressive lines. The best way in the world for any class of men to better their conditions is to organize, come together for the purpose of discussing things pertaining to their own interests. Some progressive farmer should come forward and call a meeting for the purpose of organizing a "farmers' improvement league," or some organization of the kind with an appropriate name. Then have frequent meetings in order to bring the farmers together, where they may talk over difficulties and give experiences. The world depends upon the farmer; there is no farm much is expected of him. He is losing opportunities for doing good and benefiting himself by dragging along in the same way he has been doing all his life. We have the best county and the best state in the union, but the best soil on the face of the earth will amount to nothing if the human mind and hand does not take proper care of it. Let's improve conditions by coming together and talking over the ways and means for doing so. If your neighbor is successful, if he raises more potatoes or onions to the acre than you do, he will tell you how it is done in a meeting of farmers held for that purpose. If any of our readers believe we are right in this matter, let us hear from you through the columns of this paper. Make suggestions for the carrying out of a plan that will help us to go to the top in the raising of farm products.

RECENTLY the Louisville Times contained a lengthy article about the book, entitled "Hand Book of Classics," by Rev. Charles Henry Prather, D. D., now pastor of the Methodist church at Russellville, Ky. We haven't the space to print the article in full, but the following quotation from the Times will give you some idea of the value of the book: "It is a book of a man who has read much, who has thought much, and felt much. Its diction is admirable—clear and flexible English is used, and the wealth of incident, of story, of historical suggestion and classical allusion is really wonderful. It is a book of equal facility of happenings in far countries and incidents transpiring in Louisville and Kentucky." Dr. Prather is well known in this part of the state, having married Miss Elizabeth Smith, of Shepherdsville, and was born and reared in Nelson county. He has come up from the bottom to the top, and his hosts of friends all over the state are proud of his success. A copy of this book may be had from the publishers, Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., price is one dollar. A better Christmas gift could not be found.

GOOD ROADS BILL.

Legislative Committee Is At Work On Measure For Kentucky's Legislature.

Times. A bill was drafted Saturday by the Legislative Committee of the Kentucky Good Roads' Association that it is believed will meet with the approval of the next Legislature. The committee at work on the measure is composed of Judge James P. Gregory, of Louisville; Harry Somers, of Elizabethtown, and Jos. F. Bosworth, of Middletown.

By a vote taken last year the people of Kentucky authorized an amendment to the Constitution permitting any county in the State to increase its debt from 2 to 5 per cent. of the county assessment, the purpose being that bonds could be issued for the construction of good roads.

Three good roads bills were introduced at the last session of the Legislature, but all of them met defeat. The Legislative Committee of the Good Roads' Association is confident that the bill will meet the approval of a majority of the members of the next General Assembly.

WORTHINGTON.

Nor. 26.—Miss Katherine Johnson returned Tuesday after a delightful visit to relatives at Harrodsburg.

Miss Marion Stone, of Crescent Hill, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with Miss Bessie Broyles.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Schuler are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter.

Mrs. Lucy Chamberlain and son, A. L. Chamberlain, spent Thanksgiving day with Theodore Chamberlain and family near Poplar Grove.

Miss Newton Miller returned home Wednesday, after a brief visit to her sister at South Paducah. Miss Louisa Miller returned also to spend the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Collins entertained at dinner Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Bond, of Louisville, Mrs. Harry Mitchell, Misses Leola Maddox and Edith Collier and Mr. Beverly Collier.

Mr. Zack Pernell and Mrs. J. L. Quessenberry went Friday to see his sister, Mrs. Eliza Barrickman, near Skight, who is very ill.

The teacher and pupils of Worthington school gave an entertainment Wednesday afternoon at the school house which was much enjoyed by a number of the patrons. The children had made souvenirs for the occasion in the shape of Pilgrim cradles with popcorn.

Mildred, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Chamberlain, died Friday morning at 5:30 o'clock of plural pneumonia. The funeral was held at the Worthington church and interment took place at the Worthington cemetery. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in their sorrow, but commend them to the Savior who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and I will forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

SMITHSON'S BEQUEST

Origin of the Famous Smithsonian Institution.

THE CONTROL OF ITS FUNDS.

Uncle Sam's Treasury Holds Its Money, Which Can Be Used Only on Appropriation by Congress—Its Peculiar Relation to the Government.

Although the name of the Smithsonian Institution is a common household word in America and millions of persons have visited the great buildings in Washington where are stored the contributions of science which have been gathered under its auspices, few understand the real relation of the institution to the national government.

Most persons believe that it is a part of the government.

The Smithsonian Institution, says the Washington Times, occupies a peculiar relation to this government. It is a part of it, and yet it is not a part. Its monies are in the United States treasury and can be used only on appropriation by congress, and this money does not belong to the government. It is to the government only as the money of a ward is to a guardian.

James Smithsonian, who contributed the bulk of the fund in the hands of the institution, was an Englishman, the son of a peer of the realm. He was a man who could trace his ancestry back to royal blood. He never visited America and was never known to have any particular partiality for America until he wrote his will in 1826. He died at Genoa in 1829, when he opened his will it was what they read:

"I bequeathed the whole of my property to the United States of America to be found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

This property amounted to about $500,000, which was in that day a princely fortune. Six years after his death the United States legation at London was informed that there was about $500,000 in the possession of the adjutant general of the British court of chancery awaiting claimant.

Immediately there arose in America all kinds of opposition to the acceptance of the money. John C. Calhoun and William G. Preston urged with all the fire of their eloquence that it was beneath the dignity of this government to accept such a gift.

John Quincy Adams and others prevailed, and Richard Rush was sent to England to prosecute the claim of this government.

He was successful, and on Sept. 1, 1828, the money was delivered at the mint in Philadelphia in the shape of 104,520 gold eagles, which were minted into $508,318.46 in American money.

This sum by careful management and by additions from other charitable inclined persons has now become about $1,000,000, which the government keeps and pays interest upon for the maintenance of the institution.

For the first eight years the money lay in the treasury while plans were being formulated for a permanent establishment described by Smithsonian in his will. Thousands of letters were received, and there were schemes enough proposed to bankrupt several governments. Congressmen debated over this fund repeatedly, and hundreds of pages of the Congressional Globe were given up to it.

The institution has been worked on such broad lines as to be one of the greatest forces in scientific research in the world.

The board of regents is composed of the vice president of the United States, the chief justice of the United States, three United States senators, three representatives and six citizens of the United States at large.

The National museum, the weather bureau, the zoological park at Washington, the fisheries bureau and the astrophysical observatory have been developed by the institution.

The objects of the institution, as described by its first secretary, Joseph Henry, have been adhered to through the years of its existence. They are to increase knowledge by original investigations and study either in science or literature and to diffuse knowledge not only through the United States, but everywhere, especially by promoting an interchange of thought among those prominent in learning in all nations. No restriction is made in favor of any one branch of knowledge.

"To assist men of science in making original researches, to publish them in a series of volumes and to give a copy of them to every first class library in the world."

Books, laboratory accommodations and apparatus have been supplied to thousands of investigators throughout the United States.

Unprincipled Wretch.
"You simply cannot trust anybody," declared the lady, "only when I had the utmost confidence in, left me suddenly yesterday and took with her my beautiful pearl brooch."

"That is too bad," sympathized the friend. "Which one was?"

"That very pretty one I smuggled through last year."—Life.

Excessive anger against human stupidity is itself one of the most provoking of all forms of stupidity.—Von Radowski.

FIFTEEN BUSHELS

From Two Shocks of Corn Raised By C. W. Stutzenberger in St. Matthews County—Who Can Beat It?

St. Matthews, Nov. 26.—The Jeffersonian.—While the farmers have been striving to outdo each other on second crop to see which one could raise the most potatoes to the hill, I suppose, why let me have some room to say something about the corn crops. I shucked out two shocks of corn and measured it, which netted me fifteen bushels. Pretty hard to believe, but I have witness to prove this. Now, this corn was not grown in the bottoms or low lands and I don't expect to compare it with that.

Yours truly,
C. H. STUTZENBERGER.

Wm. E. Pemberton Dead.

Clark, Ky., Nov. 21.—William E. Pemberton, a well known merchant at Clark Station, died Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock, after an illness of several months of Bright's disease. He was fifty-three years of age. His wife, who was Miss Willie Glem, of this county, and one daughter, Miss Janie Pemberton, survive him. He was a native of this county, and numbered a host of friends in this section of the state. Mr. Pemberton for a number of years was a messenger in the employ of the Adams Express Company, working first on the route from Bloomfield to Louisville and later from Cincinnati to Nashville. A brother, Capt. Ben F. Pemberton, who was the doorkeeper of the State Senate at the last session of Legislature, lives in Louisville, as does a sister, Mrs. Geo. Deer. The funeral services will be conducted from the residence at Clark Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock by Elder A. B. Lipscomb, of the Christian church. The burial will be in Grove Hill at Shelbyville.

We would like to tell you what is store for Companion readers next year. We cannot do it here, though, there is not room. But send us your address on a postal card, and we will send you the beautiful Prospectus of The Companion for 1911, announcing many new features, together with sample copies of the paper.

We think you will agree, when you have read them, that there is no other paper that gives you so much of such a high quality as The Companion.
